FECUNDITY OF THE QUEEN BEE .- Baron Berlepseh, in several different experiments made to find out how many eggs are daily deposited by the queen bee, discovered that she laid 1,604 eggs in twenty four hours, as the result of the first. In the second, she deposited on an average 1.913 daily, for the space of twenty days. In the third one, an average of 2,400 daily was found for the same length of time. In the fourth, she deposited 3,021 in twenty-four hours. She was seen by him to deposit six eggs one minute. A writer in the National Live Stock Journal states that a gentleman told him, at the Illinois State Fair, that he had known a queen to deposit an average of 3 800 eggs daily for several days. As to his own experience, he had koown 1,500 eggs to be deposited within the short space of four hours.

LOST HOURS.

A youth stood by the ocean's side. And joyous'y, with careless hands, He flang the precious, colden sauds Into the roaring, feaming tide.

No wonder that in thoughtless glee He scattered for with lavish hands These wonderful and precious sands, They flashed and splashed so merrily.

A man stood by the ocean's side With wringing and uplifted bands: "O, give me back my golden sands,

O, give them back to me!' he cried. The waves returned a hollow roar Of meckery: no gracious tide Washed up the treasures to his side-The sands were lost forevermore.

MANAGING A MAN.

ELLIE DAVIS was the prettiest and No sweetest, best and dearest little girl in Hillsburg; and when Tom Carter fell head over heels in love with her, nobody blamed him in the least. And when the parson gave his blessing, and they went to commence housekeeping in a cosy little house on the south side of the town, everybody prophesied all sorts of happiness for the pretty bride .-And, truth to tell, Nellie Carter was very happy. It is a pleasant thing to go to housekeeping for the first time, with everything new and shiny; and if you have somebody you love very much for your companion, it is still pleasanter. Now, Nellie did love that great big blund ring Tom Carter with ing taken sick with diarrhees, drank a pint all her might and main, and there was only was the very pink of tidiness, and Tom was the most careless tellow alive. He kept his person nent and nice-but his personal belongings anything else. Tom would persist in tossing his slippers under the parlor sofa, to have them handy. In vain did she suggest that the rack in the hall was the place for his hat and overcoat. Tom would fling his overcoat, damp or dry, on her pretty bed, and drop his hat anywhere. In vain did tidy Nellie make a place for everything, for Tom invariably tossed everything in some other place. N.w, little Mrs. Nellie was only hu man, and Tom's slovenly ways annoyed her exceedingly. She was resolved not to spoil the peace of her cosy home by scolding, but how to care him she could not tell. She bore with the patience of an angel, until one mersing after he had gone to his office, she went into the parlor, and there lay Tom's

"Now, I can't stand this and I won't!" said Nellie, as she carefully raised the shawl from the delicate treasures and discovered

"I don't know what to do, but this I won't have !" she continued, with the little bit of wifely snap which all good wives must have if they expect to get on at all with that oceasional unreasonable animal-a man.

"Some way must be discovered to cure Tom of such performances as this," went on Mrs. Nellie as she removed the ruins of her vase, and all the morning she wert about the house with scarlet lips closely compressed nd a little flush in her brown argued well for Master Tom's domestic sub-

'em." declared Master Tom, as he gave her a kiss and took himself off. And the moment the door closed upon him Nellie's red lips compressed again, and her brown eyes wore the same look as they had worn yesterday.
"War it is, then !" she said to herself-

"Now Master Tom, we shall see who wins the field." She set quietly about the usual morning's work of a mistress of a house where only one servant is kept, and when Tom came to din-

To DYE SCARLET -- One and one half ounce of muriate of tin; one onnce of cochineal; one ounce of cream-of-tartar. To one pound of cloth or yarn allow three gallons of water; when blood-warm, add one ounce of cream of tartar; increase the heat a little cochines and three-fourths of an ounce of muriate of tin; dye and boil one hour, turning often; take out and rinse in cold water; then add the remaining cochineal and tin liquid to three gallons of warm water ; put in the goods and proceed as before. This recipe for scarlet is the best I have ever known. It does not fade or turn dark when
